

For Internet Explorer 11:

For those members using Internet Explorer 11 (IE11) as their browser, you will notice a patterned box around the message area:

This pattern may even show adjustment squares after pasting. Please do not readjust the size using the squares as you may limit the information you can see regarding your post. This would make creating or editing your information more difficult.

Because of the way that IE11 displays the text area, you may notice your information scrolling to the left. This is a known issue with IE11.

Also, once you start to enter information into the post, the scroll bars may be required. They do not function as normal scrollbars, but require the user to double click and hold down the mouse to use them. This is a known issue with IE11.

-- End of Directions --